Page:

When the user visits the website, they see a section that gives information about the Olympic Games 2024 in Paris. This section has a big heading and the Olympic logo in the top right corner.

A table is included that gives information about important events, dates, and places such as the Opening Ceremony, Beach Events, and Closing Ceremony.

Table of Highlights:

This contains the top in blue, which exhibits the events, their respective venues, and dates. Users can glance through the details of the important Olympic events.

User Feedback Form:

Form Layout: A feedback form can be filled out by the users after highlighting the events. The form is user-friendly, and spaces are provided for input.

Form Fields:

Name, Email, and Phone fields ensure users provide their contact information.

You select gender by means of radio buttons.

Users select their favorite Olympic event from a dropdown list.

They can select their preferred date using a date picker.

A checkbox is added to show that they agree to the terms and conditions before submitting.

Form Validation:

All fields are required and, therefore, the form cannot be submitted unless all fields are correctly filled.

The email must be in a correct format (like example@example.com).

Phone numbers should contain exactly 10 digits. Anything more or less than that is not accepted by this form.

Users should check the box to agree to it. This ensures the users go through the terms before submission of choices.

Form Submission:

When the user clicks the Submit button, a JavaScript function checks if the form inputs are correct. If the validation goes through, a pop-up will appear thanking the user, showing their name, such as "Thank you, submitted successfully! [User's Name]".

The form's Reset button clears all fields in case the user wants to start over or make any changes.
